

Be prepared to save the life of a loved one – or even a complete stranger – should the need arise.

The Stop the Bleed campaign is a national initiative – created by the American College of Surgeons with input from first responders and law enforcement – that provides bystanders with the tools and knowledge to stop life-threatening bleeding during the precious moments before first responders arrive.

Students will experience both lecture and hands-on training that will teach them to apply dressings, tourniquets and hemostatic agents to stop bleeding.

You never know when you may be called upon to assist with a severely injured patient who is bleeding. Learning how to Stop the Bleed while waiting for first responders to arrive could be the difference between life and death while waiting for first responders to arrive.
