Furniture Functional Inventory

INTRODUCTION

A. PURPOSE

Over the past several decades, Solano College, like its peers, has invested a significant amount of taxpayer's dollars in furniture to create a functional, effective working environment through which to deliver its mission. The District approached furniture in a traditional manner, often selecting products to meet a project budget or timeline, but with little other criteria to guide the selection process. In addition, funding for these items has been minimal, given the increased pressure on operational budgets, reductions in state funding for capital improvement programs, and reoccurring construction change orders that have reduced allocations for this aspect of a project. This has resulted in an eclectic combination of items, from effective and viable, to those beyond their usable life.

Given the size of this investment, and the increasing pressure on project costs, Solano is wisely considering integrating existing (viable) furniture and select fixtures and equipment into the proposed Measure Q projects. The Functional Inventory Report offers a comprehensive examination of only the furniture assets, providing an in-depth analysis of current conditions, and offers pragmatic recommendations based on Solano College's specific business issues and operational objectives. The report creates a detailed assessment of items that go far beyond traditional data typically gathered in a furniture inventory, and allows the college to make the most of existing furniture investments. The Functional Inventory is a key component in a framework for making efficient and appropriate decisions in order to support the college's needs, while highlighting the District's sustainability leadership to their community.

Some items have been intentionally excluded from this report. Instructional equipment and technology was not included, given the importance of having programmatic evaluation of items based upon their ability to support the most current goals of each academic program. It is assumed that much of this category of equipment has long term viability for the college. Copiers, Scanners, Printers and other administrative equipment was not assessed due to the nature of their ownership (either leased, or maintained under a service agreement, or managed directly by the departments). This report does include a photographic record of maintenance and operations equipment - these items will be assessed using performance specifications at the appropriate time, using criteria critical to this department's success. In addition, fixtures, break room equipment and personal items were omitted from this assessment.

B. PROCESS

In order to efficiently approach this large undertaking, the District engaged a professional services consultant, Dovetail Decision Consultants, Inc., to facilitate the analysis and development of the data. This report is a result of a pragmatic and structured process which was implemented in three (3) phases. The first two (2) phases included various levels of assessment, while the final phase involved the development of this report.

1. Assessment Protocol

- a. Development of assessment guidelines
- b. Initial photographic assessment by building
- c. Creation of inventory schedule to align with operational requirements
- d. Preparation of database files

2. Physical Inventory

- a. Assessment of each space
- b. Development of photographic record
- c. Assignment of real replacement costs

3. Documentation

- a. Preparation of photographic and detailed inventory reports
- b. Development of overall report
- c. Inclusion in Facilities Master Plan document

C. DEFINITION OF TERMS

Within the context of this document, various terms are used to define or qualify the information. The following definitions reflect the intentions of these expressions:

Disposition: Recommendations for reutilization, donation or surplus.

Equipment: Computers, projectors, printers, copiers, appliances and other institution equipment not integral to the operation of the building, as defined by the State Chancellor’s office.

Existing Conditions: The physical condition (based upon the District’s definitions of Level A, B or C), replacement costs in present day figures at a quality level appropriate to the District’s goals, and suitable level of reutilization of District-owned Furniture.

Fixtures: Items that are typically attached to the building, such as a tack board, white board, or shelving, and is not integral to the operation of the building

Furniture: Desks, Seating, Tables, storage units, and other items supporting users within a space.

Guiding Principles: Foundational principles utilized to develop process and standards recommendations, established by the District to assure effective use of resources.

Level A Furniture: Product is less than five (5) years old. Product appears to have low TCO requirements to maintain viability over time, and meets the primary quality requirements of the District. Product can support multiple applications over time in the appropriate locations. Report includes photos of overall spaces for Functional Inventory report. Detail provided includes photos of similar items, tagged to current building room signage number.

Level B Furniture: Product is somewhat older than five (5) years AND/OR new but may not be of adequate quality based upon the District’s guiding principles. Product could incur costs equal to replacement in short period of time (between 5 and 15 years). Product may also either not applicable in current utilization due to demands placed upon the product, or may be being utilized effectively in current application but risk fail upon relocation. Detail provided in report includes basic description, current usage and recommended utilization if applicable, estimated life, and replacement cost. Includes photos of like items, tagged to building room signage number.

Level C Furniture: Product is failing in current application, or is beyond usable life or repair. Product has little to no future value for the District. Replacement timeline estimate the maximum usable life of the item within the college environment. Report includes general description, current usage, material, and replacement costs. Photos of like items only are also included, to be used in disposition process.

Replacement Costs: The complete cost to replace an item, in present day dollars to the quality level desired by the District, and is inclusive of all required services to make each item functional for the user (freight, delivery, installation, assembly, connection to building infrastructure, etc.).

2. KEY FINDINGS AND OBSERVATIONS

The physical surroundings of the college reflects the desire of the District to provide an engaging and appropriate learning and working environment. There are many positive attributes, reflected in the efforts undertaken in the past decade through Measure G to improve the image of the campuses. The newer buildings are more inviting, less institutional overall, and reflect a contemporary feel through the furniture and finishes provided. There are several spaces for student collaboration throughout the District, primarily at the centers. However, there are aspects about the furniture that, when benchmarked against the goals of the District, require attention and resolution moving forward.

A. QUALITY: Given the broad variations in product, a major challenge in this process was creating a viable benchmark against which to evaluate all furniture assets, and to assess the items with uniformity and objectivity. There is a wide variety of product quality throughout the District, with some items viable only if the item is never moved from its present location and utility. From a total number of items perspective, only nineteen (19) percent of the product within the District reflects a quality sufficient to withstand decades of use within the demanding environment. Fifty-two (52) percent of the products represent items that are deemed to be at risk of failure within the next ten (10) to fifteen (15) years, further reducing the potential for efficient reuse over the course of the modernization program. In addition, Operational costs are impacted by the lower quality level, leading to increased labor to work around the lower quality items, as well as poses the potential for increased risk to the District from a safety perspective.

B. AESTHETICS: The aesthetic environment of the various college facilities varies greatly from location to location. Finishes are inconsistent between buildings and sites, the selections of colors and layouts fluctuates from program to program, and individual preferences have created inventory challenges for operations. This impacts the students and general community's perception of Solano College's brand and capabilities. Products well beyond their useable life are still in operation at several locations, increasing the haphazard look and feel. With increased competition within the educational marketplace, the District is at risk for losing students to institutions both public and private that have a more cohesive and professional looking environment. The Vallejo and Vacaville Centers have done a good job at presenting a more professional look and feel.

C. COSTS: There are several areas of unnecessary expense to the District as it directly relates to furniture. Operational expenses may be negatively impacted by design elements of much of the furniture, such as dust catching details, weight of items, and the number of obstructions inhibiting custodial duties. The services required to keep the products functional, clean and safe for the users has not been provided as part of the product procurement, adding to the expectation that this will be provided by custodial services. Product materials selected, such as fabric or painted finishes, have not withstood the realities of the actual environment. In addition, each time a product fails, due to limited warranty capability, replacements have been funded out of the general fund, reducing resources available to serve other needs.

D. INEQUITY: The wide range of quality, aesthetics and functionality of the furniture throughout the District has created an inequity for the faculty, staff and students. The perception that some programs, departments or individuals may be receiving less than optimal product to support their needs has a direct effect on morale and productivity. It also negatively impacts the student's overall attitude about the environment, as well as their potential desire to help keep the facilities looking clean and appropriate for the college.

3. REPORTS

This report includes two (2) key documents for the District's use. With more than thirteen thousand items in inventory across more than 20 buildings, the actual Functional Inventory Report runs almost two hundred pages. This report contains the detailed, item by item, room by room, and building by building inventory information. In addition, a complete photographic record of the items assessed is included in that document. The second portion, titled Functional Inventory Condition Report, summarizes the replacement costs per condition, per location. This has been created to identify the budgetary requirements for this component of the Capital Improvement Program.

The charts below reflect the overall data in summary form for simplicity. Each set offers a comprehensive snapshot of the District data, followed by a location by location breakdown. The first set reflect dollar values for replacement, based upon current replacement values, inclusive of services and quality necessary to not require replacement again for several decades. The second set of charts reflect the quantity of items by condition.

Chart 1: Aggregate Value of Furniture within District, by Condition

From a replacement value perspective, almost sixty (60) percent of the existing furniture within the District falls under the definition of Level B, indicating a strong possibility that these products will require replacement within 10 years. A quarter of the resources required represent items that are close to or have reached their end of life, creating an urgent need for replacement in order for the college to continue to support the needs of the faculty, staff and students.

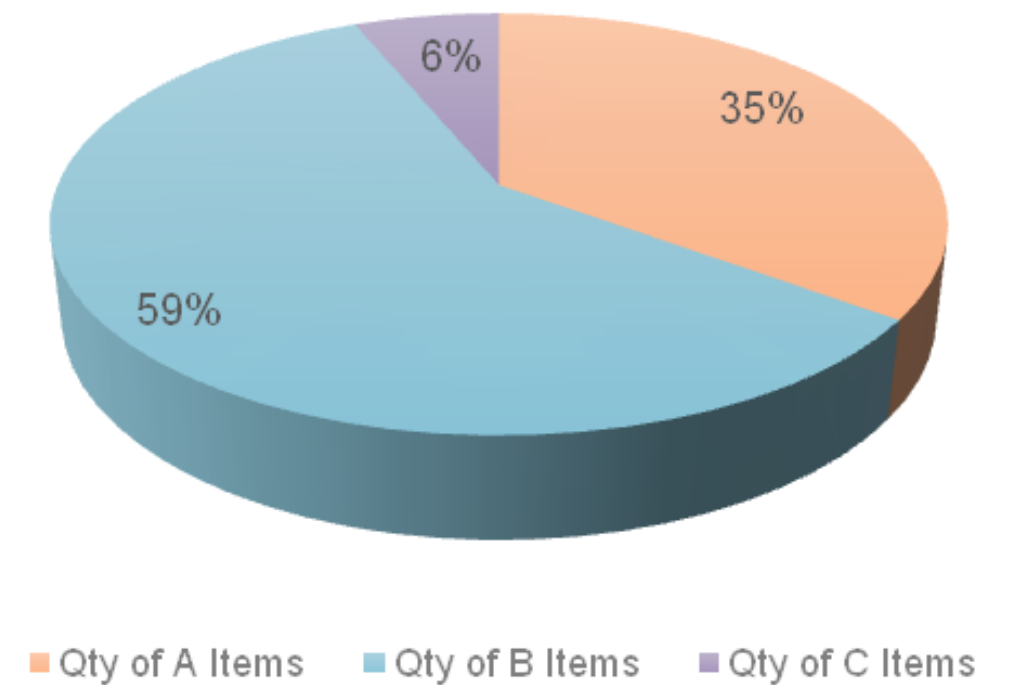

Chart 1A: Aggregate Value of Furniture, Solano College, by Condition

The value of over eighty (80) percent of furniture at Solano College falls within the Level B and Level C condition categories. This is to be expected given the relatively few buildings that have been built or modernized at this location, or that have been furnished with products not designed for such a demanding environment.

Quantity of Items by Condition

Vacaville Center

Solano College

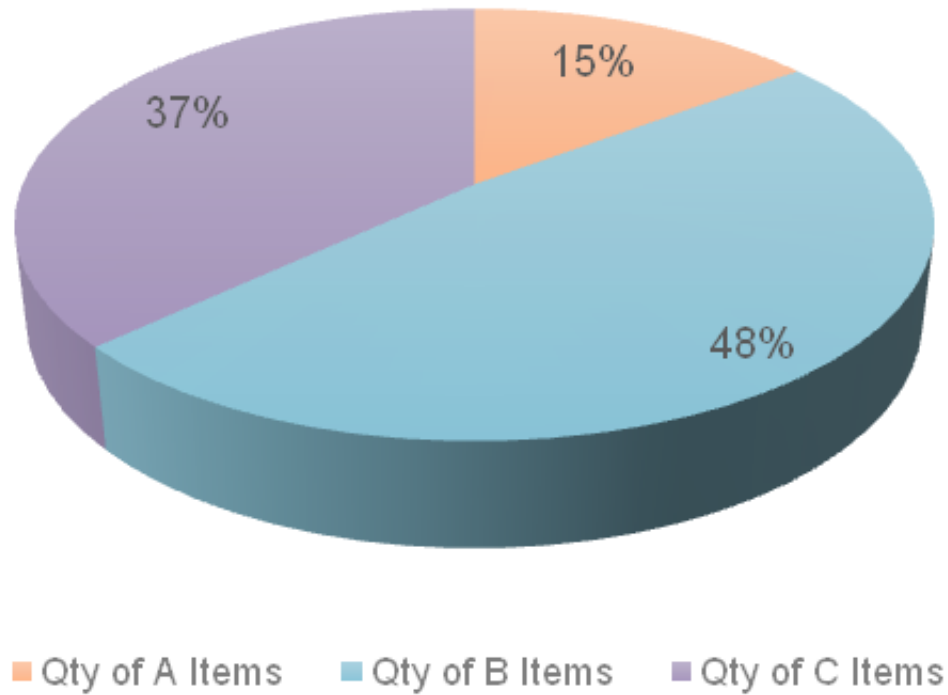

Chart 1B: Aggregate Value of Furniture, Vacaville Center, by Condition

While the Vacaville Center is fairly new to the District, two-thirds of the products installed at this location also fall within the Level B and C condition categories. This is primarily due to the fact that much of the product is at risk for failure within a short time frame, as well as the fact that some items were repurposed from original locations at the time of original installation. A small percentage (six (6) percent) represents an urgent need for replacement.

Chart 1C: Aggregate Value of Furniture, Vallejo Center, by Condition

At the Vallejo Center, the value of only eleven (11) percent of the current furniture reflect a Level A condition. Much of the product that falls under the Level B condition category is in student areas, which is exposed to more demanding use. Being a fairly new, stand-alone center, it is anticipated that much of the current furniture may not be reconfigured in the near future, which will reduce the possibility of damage and failure. Very little of the existing product (four (4) percent) is in urgent need of replacement within five (5) years.

the college. Budgeting for replacement of the Level C items within the next five (5) years could be beneficial to the college.

Chart 2B: Aggregate Quantity of Items, Vacaville Center, by Condition

Like the Vallejo Center, this newer facility would be expected to receive a small allocation of resources for furniture in the coming decade. However, given that almost sixty-five (65) percent of the quantity of items represent the poorer conditions defined, it is recommended that adequate replacement resources be considered within the next five (5) years in order to avoid increased operational expenses and safety concerns at this location.

Chart 2C: Aggregate Quantity of Items, Vallejo Center, by Condition

The number of items at the Vallejo Center that fall into Level B and C condition is quite large, ninety-five (95) percent, despite being a fairly new facility. It is recommended that appropriate planning for replacement in these two categories be considered in the next few years, as noted for the Vacaville Center.

Vallejo Center

Chart 2: Aggregate Quantity of Items within District, by Condition

Sixteen (16) percent of the products within the District are capable of withstanding the rigors of the community college environment, while helping to reduce the cost of ownership over their expected life. Fifty-four (52) percent represent items that will be in need of replacement within 15 years at the outside, especially in the public seating and task seating categories. Twenty-nine (29) percent of the items within the District have either reached the end of their usable life, represent safety issues, or are not appropriate for the college environment.

Chart 2A: Aggregate Quantity of Items, Solano College, by Condition

The quantity of items that should be replaced with higher quality, and therefore more appropriate products, equals eighty-five (85) percent of the furniture on the Solano College campus. However, a large percentage of these items (forty-eight (48) percent) could achieve a longer life if they are not placed in student areas, or relocated within

4. INVENTORY DATA

Detailed inventory and assessment information is formatted by room, utilizing the actual room numbers within each location (where available). When no room numbering was provided, the inventory references the numbering provided on the FUSION Inventory Drawings provided by STV. The data is separated by college location (Fairfield, Vallejo, Vacaville), with total replacement values noted at the end of each location's listing.

5. SITE PHOTOGRAPHS

Photographs of most locations have been provided as reference. In some instances, if a room represents a typical configuration for an office or classroom within a specific building, a note indicating that this was a "Typical" configuration is added to the photo title. Please refer to the detailed inventory per location for the specific aspects of each item per location.
