 - Professors, the programs the school offers (social programs and/or education), Academic Support for Students, Financial Support, and Early Alert system.
- c. Students mentioned that they have felt strong support from their professors in education and outside of school, meaning professors are sympathetic with students and understand life sometimes gets in the way and affects schooling. Students feel like professors are understanding of this and help students accommodate. The many programs Solano has were brought up frequently. Programs such as educational, financial, and student life have impacted the life of students. The food pantry has helped students in need of groceries and in difficult situations. The early alert system also allows for students to find help that they didn't know the school can provide.
- d. The five most important characteristics students seek in the new superintendent president are someone who is; connected, reliable, aware of culture sensitivity/diversity, active in the community/community oriented, and flexible. Students discussed that they would like the new Superintendent to be someone who is active and aware of what is happening in the community. They want someone that actively seeks to connect with students and the community, and continue pushing Solano to be community oriented.
- e. Students also discussed what issues the new Superintendent should address during their first year are: The lack of staff and/or full time professors in certain departments such as Film, ASL, BUS, etc., students feel like this also affects the schedule and the classes available and times are restricted.
